

Growth Story – Paras Chaturvedi

Role Applied To: Data Champion

---

1. What was my goal?

In the previous rounds, my goal was to complete all the assigned tasks thoughtfully and responsibly. I wanted to make sure that I understood the expectations clearly and responded with original ideas. I aimed to show that I can think independently and communicate with clarity.

2. What went well?

- I was able to complete the tasks within the deadline.
  - I stayed honest in my approach instead of copying from anywhere.
  - I made an effort to understand the deeper purpose behind each task, rather than just finishing it for the sake of it.

3. What didn't go well?

- I didn't always double-check my work against the rubric.
  - In a few tasks, I focused too much on completing quickly instead of improving the quality.
  - Sometimes, I wasn't sure if my answers matched what was expected.

4. What will I do differently next time?

- I will take a little more time to review my work properly before submitting.
  - I'll try to connect more with the purpose behind each task, so I can deliver better.
  - I will ask for feedback earlier in the process, not just at the end.

5. What kind of mindset am I building through this?

This process is teaching me to think more like a leader, not just doing tasks, but reflecting on them, improving them, and owning the outcome. I'm learning to be more responsible and thoughtful.

6. How has this round helped me grow?

This round made me realize the importance of pausing to reflect. In the past, I would just move on after completing something. Now, I understand that reviewing my work helps me grow faster and become more confident.

7. How will I apply this in real life?

From now on, I will make it a habit to reflect on my performance after every major task or decision. I will take time to ask myself what went right, what didn't, and how I can do better next time, just like I did here.
